Y.W.C.A. Offers Aid To Local Community Center

Co-operation of the Louisville Y.W.C.A. in setting up a whole new service program that would be of interest to residents of the area was promised directors of the Jeffersonton Community Center, Inc., at the December meeting of the Friends.

Speakers were Mrs. Lois Buchanan, executive director of the Y.W.C.A., and Mrs. Beatrix Spong, former youth director, currently working on the Y.W.C.A. decontaminating program.

They explained that the Y.W.C.A. could provide a program for those interested if facilities were available and co-operation of local people could be obtained.

Directors of the center unanimously voted to accept the program, which can be provided on Thursday and Friday nights at each week at the center. No charge is to be made for use of the building, John T. Orlando, center president, said, and activities are scheduled to start the middle of January. Those local people interested in the Y.W.C.A. classes and functions which can now be sponsored and directed.

Mrs. Spong described in detail the type of activities which are planned, ranging from recreation to dress and deportment, cost and forth. A local committee is being organized to coordinate and co-operate with Mrs. Spong.

Richard Whitenack, center director representative of the Jefferson County Recreation Association, reported on the teen-age club the association is sponsoring for Saturday nights. This program also was given unanimous support.

The club is to officially organize December 13 and the opening activity, a party, is planned for January 10. Interested young people are urged to use presents at 7:30 both nights. Those desiring more information obtained from Charlie Spears, of the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board.

Orlando also reported that the "individual memberships" of the center still are coming in and that names are being posted on the centers bulletin board. The directors are still urging all civic minded persons to become members. "It's fashionable to carry a card," Orlando said.

FUNDS DIVERTED FOR CHRISTMAS CHEER

A recent account given in the daily press was that of the announced intention of the proprietors of one of Louisville's business establishments to forego its usual Christmas party, and to use the funds instead as a contribution to charity. The money would be used to supply Christmas dinner for the needy.

Now, that is one of the most gratifying diversions of funds of which we have heard in a long time. This is really swell! To take the money which might be spent for a Christmas party to be used up-Christmas and use it to bring happiness and cheer to some family with kids, who would otherwise be denied even the ordinary comforts of today's living standard, is something that any business organization or individual could be proud of having participated in or contributing to.

And for real happiness such participation would outweigh, by far, that afforded by any party where there is eating or drinking in excess, not to mention the probable hangover which often follows. That, of course, is not to say that all Christmas parties given by business firms prove to be drinking orgies or even an occasion for overeating. But we have known some that were nothing more than a social gathering.

So for celebrating Christmas, we recommend the selfless type of participation where the sponsors give of their substance, and maybe themselves, to furnish Christmas cheer to those for whom it might otherwise be drear. Playing Santa Claus in such manner and in such manifestation of Christmas spirit could not do other than make Santa's own heart happy too.

PLAN FOR PUBLIC HEALTH PROGRESS

A man or woman with a definite purpose in life, plus the best possible training for fulfilling that purpose (a planned vocation or profession) is what it takes to reach a successful goal. Such type of preparedness applied to a public service promises a material asset to one's country.

This sort of consecrated endeavor has contributed much to this nation's public health. Without skilled people in the clinics, the hospitals and the research laboratories the fight against disease could not go on with much success. Unfortunately, there is said to be a growing shortage of highly trained disease fighters, despite recent advances in medical science.

At reliable information, there are needed today 100,000 more nurses, physical and occupational therapists, medical social workers doctors and experts, all down the line from clinical practice to laboratory research. To fill this gap in medical manpower, the National Foundation has just announced the most impressive plan for health scholarships in this country's history.

The National Foundation, originally known as the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, is the voluntary health organization that runs the March of Dimes, gave patient aid to some 255,000 polio victims, financed the Salk vaccine and educated 70 million Americans to use it effectively against polio paralysis. It is now expanding its scope to include, besides polio, America's No. 1 crippling—arthritis—and the nation's most unmet childhood problem—birth defects.

Over the next 10 years The National Foundation proposes to set aside $12 million in March of Dimes funds to help 505 students each year get college training in the health professions. Each scholarship will pay $500 a year for four years. The National Foundation's 3,100 chapters will select from each state five to 25 students a year, depending on population.

Through this scholarship plan, The National Foundation is putting the emphasis for winning the health battle back on people. And it's people who count.

BUREAU RULING HAMPERS FREE PRESS

Government by pressure and edicts by bureaus that amount to law are not altogether new. The latest . . . comes in a ruling that the Bureau of Internal Revenue so far has failed to rescind, although it has been widely criticized as an infringement on freedom of the press.

The controversy lies on the edge of the public vs. private power debate. Public utility companies have purchased advertising space to present their side of this debate, and quite often we see advertising also presenting the public power advocates' side.

Now, such advertising, in any business, ordinarily is held to be a regular business expense. Cost of advertising is deducted . . . as a regular cost of doing business.

But the Internal Revenue officials have made a special ruling. For this particular type of advertising, it has held no deduction can be made. So far as we can determine, no one has ever explained why one kind of advertising is a business expense and why another is not.

Newspapers and press associations, including the Montana State Press Association, have attacked this ruling as a direct attempt to control media and limit the freedom of expression. The utilities are carrying the fight to Washington, too. The Northwest Electric Light & Power Association passed a resolution declaring that "the recent announcement issued by the Bureau of Internal Revenue that it intends to disallow the . . . advertising expenditures as income tax deductions is an attempt to impose political pressures on business activities and it improperly infringes upon the freedom of expression of the citizenry".

As we have pointed out before, this is not a question of public vs. private power. It is far more fundamental and far reaching. An appointive officer in government today is in effect penalizing one group. What whim will stop him . . . from exercising tax powers to hit another? This is an indirect, subtle but wholly effective way of limiting freedom of speech. The only difference is that it has been done by bureau edict rather than by legislative act.

COMMON-SENSE ECONOMICS

A few years ago a national organization made an opinion poll of newspaper editors, written in the form of a numbered list of economic questions. The writers were asked if they favored certain measures of legislation affecting economic conditions. And at the end of the list of questions was this one: "Would it be advisable to adopt Socialism as an economic system for America?"

An overwhelming number of the national writers participating in the survey said "No" to the last question — they registered themselves as opposed to Socialism for America. But surprisingly enough, a substantial number of them favored individual legislative measures taken directly from the textbook of Socialism. In other words, they were not so much opposed to Socialism, but when Socialism's economic program was broken down into separate measures — not labeled as Socialist — they registered approval of individual parts.

The Dangers

This opinion survey revealed two important dangers: (1) Many influential people in America do not understand the economic fact of Socialism. (2) Those who do understand Socialism as an ideological system are not fully aware of the actualities of Socialism.

The opponent was correct; both measures are based on the economic philosophy of the Socialist economic platform as printed on page 145 of my copy of the Congressional Record of 1956. The opponents of "N. W. Ayer & Son's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals," only 46 religious periodicals and newspapers are shown as having been established as long as the Sunday School Times, a weekly paper published in Philadelphia.

The first issue of the Times was dated January 1, 1859, and it is still in publication to this day, a 190-year-old periodical. In this issue there were pictures of some of the early publishers and editors, of the present presidents and editors, of the present officers of the church, and of the Sunday School lesson writers. A specially prepared article will outline the principal events in the paper's past.

A New Book

A new book on economics has come to my attention. It is entitled, "Common-Sense Economics." That is exactly what we need in the whole realm of economics — common sense, reasoning and common sense appraisal. This new book was written by Gilbert M. Tucker of Albany, New York, and is published by the The Sunday School Board, Harrison, Pennsylvania. ($4.95).

Mrs. Melvin Brown, craft leader, has tried to present the economic facts of life devoid of the jargon and technicalities of dogmatic, hot-headed involvement of the classic academic economist. He has gone far toward achieving success in this goal. His book is readable, interesting and his viewpoints are clear and logical. A beginner or a scholar can learn a great deal of economics from this book.

Basic Economic Facts

Chances which I found exceedingly informative and interesting were: Wealth, Labor and Wages, Land Rent, Profits, Inflation and Prices, Taxation, City Taxation, Business, Finance and Frauds, The American Way of Communism, The American Trend, Socialism in America, That Outlook. Mr. Tucker spends considerable time in explaining the need for tax reform in America. Most of the best informed tax experts are agreed that along-term tax reform must now be considered for the sake of safeguarding our nation and the world.

Representative Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, may not accept Mr. Tucker's suggestions, but all would be stimulated and benefited by studying them.

"We believe," says Mr. Tucker, "that economics can be made a special rule. For this reason we believe it is the most necessary . . . for if the next generations are not better trained than we have been, it is unfair and dangerous to let them inherit such public borrowing, the conflict of Communism with the American idea, and a hundred other questions." That is to say, "Amen!"

Mr. Wilfred "Jack" Kaiser, 63, of Crowley, is a retired carpenter and contractor. Frank Leroy "Jack" Kaiser, 58, widow of Frank Leroy Kaiser, Okfona, died at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in his residence, 4027 Crawford Avenue, Buechel.

Kaiser, a native of Jefferson County, was a member of the Buechel Presbyterian Church. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Viola Mueller Kaiser, a daughter, Mrs. Tracy Kaiser, and two sons, Philip and Walter Kaiser; Mrs. Henry Kaiser and Mrs. Roy Bischoff; four brothers, John Kaiser, Phillip and Walter Kaiser, and three sisters.

Sunday School Times To Note 100th Anniversary

Not many living publications in the United States can lay claim to 100 years of continuous publication. And in the many thousands of periodicals, there is not one of "N. W. Ayer & Son's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals," only 46 religious periodicals and newspapers are shown as having been established as long as the Sunday School Times.

Although the Sunday School Times began and still continues as a particularly a Sunday School periodical, its ministry has always been much broader than its name might suggest. It is a magazine of Christian work and Bible study, and it is relied upon by its constituency for its conservative stand, its articles on Bible study, authoritative information on domestic subjects and the latest in Sunday School methods.

As might be expected, this Centenary Number will be printed in a special edition and will reach a total of at least 72,000 copies. Specimen copies of this unusual 100th Anniversary issue of the Times may be had for the asking. Just address The Sunday School Times Company, 325 North 13th Street, Philadelphia 5, Philadelphia.
